BIBLIOGRAPHY

Logo 85

This bibliography is the result of many people sharing Logo information. I would like to thank especially Regina Bowden and James Fry for their book survey, Andrew David and Barbara Randolph for their article compilation, and Joyce Tobias and John Collins for arranging an on-line data base search.

I would also like to acknowledge a number of others who contributed information. Clara Abrusky de Pereyra, Roger Allan, Sterling Beckwith, Gary Bitter, Val Clarke, Elizabeth Costa, Barbara Elias, ERIC on CompuServe, Marianne Handler, Dennis Harper, Uri Leron, Bruce Vassilakos Long, Allan Martin, E. Marti, Robs Muir, James Muller, Liddy Nevile, Sally Nuerenberg, Jill Olsen, L. O. Pochon, Jim Proud, Horacio Reggini, Alejandra Rojo, Eduardo Romano, Joan Russell, Nola Sheffer, Sandra Turner, Griff Wigley, Jochem Ziegenbalg, and others each helped make the bibliography more comprehensive.

Please send corrections and additional entries to me at the following address. Thank you.

5. RESEARCH GROUP PUBLICATIONS

Massachusetts Institute of Technology

The Division for Study and Research in Education - Logo Group at MIT has over sixty Memos on Logo as it was developed through the 1970s. Of particular interest is "The Final Report of the Brookline Project, Parts II and III," by Dan Watt, Seymour Papert, Andrea diSessa, and Sylvia Weir, September 1979 (Memos 53 and 54). For a bibliography of all the M.I.T. Memos, send 1.00 (checks payable to M.I.T.) to Logo Memo Bibliography, Educational Computing Group, M.I.T., 545 Technology Square, Cambridge, MA 02139.

National Science Foundation

A series of reports is available from the National Science Foundation. Many of these reports are also published at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology as Logo Memos.

University of Edinburgh

The Department of Artificial Intelligence of the University of Edinburgh has produced over 100 publications documenting research on the use of computers and Logo in education, from 1970 to the present. For a complete listing of these publications, write Department of Artificial Intelligence, University of Edinburgh, Forest Hill, Edinburgh EH1 2QL, Scotland.

Simulation Database Project

St. Andrew's College of Education in Glasgow, Scotland, sponsors the Simulation Database Project, the largest Logo program of its kind in the world. Over a dozen occasional publications have been produced, the latest of which is "Journeys into a Microworld," by Allan Martin. For more information, write Simulation Database Project, St. Andrew's College of Education, Bearsden, Glasgow, G61 4QA, Scotland.

Chiltern Logo Project

The Advisory Unit for Computer Based Education has produced a series of articles and reports on their Logo research project. For more information, write Chiltern Logo Project, Endymion Road, Hatfield, Hertfordshire, AL10 8AU, United Kingdom.
